If you are looking to grow some tomatoes at home for your personal use then hydroponics system is the best way. Hydroponic systems are not new and studies show that experiments regarding hydroponics have been going dated back to 1600 A.D. One of the most wonderful examples of hydroponics is the one of the seven wonders of earlier world called the hanging gardens of Babylon. Today, hydroponics has become a crucial part of mass production of some off season crops. Hydroponics is the best way to grow some crops like tomatoes in large or small scale because they need low maintenance. Our soil is depleting of the essential nutrients and minerals day by day and a day will come when our soil will be unable to grow crops for our consumption. So, we have to emphasize on growing crops in hydroponics and learn it so that we can grow some food for our consumption in any worst case scenario.

Hydroponics is also essential for our health. The food that we consume daily contains many kinds of pesticides and chemicals. We need a method to get rid of these harmful pesticides and chemicals to live a healthy life. Organic foods are the best way to get rid of harmful pesticides because they detox our body. But they are expensive and everyone cannot buy organic food for daily consumption. So, the best way is to grow some food in organically inside our home to use them as detoxification agent. Tomatoes are best for growing in hydroponics. So I will explain how to grow tomatoes in hydroponics in this book.
